Shellfish farming is not only sustainable, it is beneficial to the environment. Oysters, clams, and scallops are filter-feeders. They remove nutrients and particles, clearing the water and allowing sunlight to penetrate. By improving water quality, shellfish farms promote the growth of aquatic vegetation, which provides an important habitat for fish, crabs, and other marine organisms — supporting a rich and biodiverse ecosystem.

Consider it a win-win, shellfish farms are a sustainable food system that provides environmental benefits and a water-based, blue economy that uplifts Bayshore communities. Or perhaps, it is a win-win-win, as New Jersey shellfish are also delicious and nutritious!

Go green and support a blue economy with FRESH, LOCAL, FARMED-RAISED SHELLFISH!

Support your local shellfish farmers!

Over 50 shellfish farms dot New Jersey’s coastal bays, producing some of the finest shellfish in the nation!
